gif, a title or a nice music. The result will be a loop. It's not only a great application to create videos, but also for inspiration, doing homework, learning, socializing or just relaxing. As you can see, the application is pretty simple and easy to use. - [CoubW]{} is not only a YouTube client, but also it's a YouTube widget that you can embed into your website, thus your website will have a YouTube Player built-in. The widget is relatively simple and it consists in one small image button, one video image and a text that contains the text from a YouTube video description. You can do very little to the video. The video is already set in time and it's played once you click the button. .gif was created by the application, but you can edit the image by yourself if you don't like it. - [CaCoul]{} stands for "Capture and Cut Images" and it's a very simple application. You can choose one or more pictures from your system and it will create a video from them. You can do three different effects for the video: black and white, sepia or camera. By the way, you can choose the picture format. All the images have to be in JPG, JPEG or PNG format. - [Coulper]{} stands for "Capture Images and Videos in parallel". It is a very powerful application. It has a very rich interface which allows you to do almost everything with images and videos. This program is a bit more complicated than the previous ones, however, it's a must if you're a photographer or if you want to make a visual gallery for your website. You have to do some basic settings first. You have to give your camera model, the type of image format, the resolution and the frame rate. The next step is to select your camera model from a dropdown menu. Then you can select if 82157476af
