I hate to do this, but I have to give this a thumbs down. I've played these games for years and they always have the same issue: the economic simulation is terrible. The game thinks NFL teams have a problem making money, to the point that any truly bad team can't even afford to sign their #1 pick unless they trade a bunch of future picks for cash. And this year's version makes this problem even worse, as every player who resigns now wants a bonus you can't afford to pay, especially if you have a big draft pick to sign. Worse, this is a known problem that has plagued this series for years.. The devs are honestly horrible. I really don't think any of them know a lick about american football,ratings are terrible stats are terrible and the game is bare bones.. THE best Football manager game there is. Massive amount of customization. Realistic results. Ive played this game for several years and it continues to improve. It is very addicting, I play it quite a bit year round but hardcore during football season. The developers listen to their community and adapt. This new version is awesome.. Have only played this for a little while but I would highly reccomend this. I have been looking for a managment sim for american football for a while now and this has scratched that itch.. Totally glitchy. Players (sometimes almost a fourth of them) randomly disappear from rosters, player ratings randomly change, etc. Tried to install latest patch (15.10), won't even run. Bad software.. The game itself is fairly good, but the offseason is a bust, with no way to use your high draft picks if you already have any good players signed for the next season.
